The Student Media Board is a Chartered Student Organization that governs UH Manoa student media programs such as Ka Leo, Hawaii Review, KTUH and UH Productions. Through mandatory student activity fees -- the Board of Publication Fee ($13) and Broadcast Communication Fee ($3) -- student media programs receive $16 per student each semester to pay for the operations and service delivery of these programs.

This fee has remained stagnant since the 1980s. The SMB is proposing a fee increase to continue funding these critical student programs.

SMB will be presenting information about the fee increase proposal on the following days:

Monday, November 13, 6 to 7 p.m., Campus Center 308
Tuesday, November 14, 6 to 7 p.m., Campus Center 307

Here are summaries of affected student media programs:

Ka Leo O Hawaii - Ka Leo, since 1922, is the campus newspaper and a venue for student voices and free expression. It is available in print twice a month. Ka Leo's online content mirrors much of how news has evolved and features breaking campus news, sports, features and opinions. Ka Leo brings to student-produced multimedia content to campus and the community. Through its mobile app, Manoa Now, Ka Leo and other student media programs are always available. Ka Leo offers students the rare opportunity to be involved in all aspects of producing and managing a news organization for print and circulation. For more on Ka Leo, see <http://www.manoanow.org/kaleo/>.

Hawaii Review - Since 1973, Hawaii Review has been the creative voice for local, national and international writers and poets. This acclaimed literary journal publishes the journal twice a year both in print and online. Past journals are also archived online. There are usually over 200 journal submissions for the journal, making it highly competitive. Students engage in all aspects of publishing the journal -- a hands-on experience that is only available at the Hawaii Review. For a sampling of Hawaii Review, see <http://hawaiireview.org/>.

UH Productions - Heard of Da Scoops? The 72-Hour Film Challenge? Historically known as the Student Video and Film Association that produced the UH Magazine via Olelo, UH Productions has been in operation since 1983. This all-student video production "company" provides students of all fields the practical experience of video production and management. Students are on the forefront of developing projects, working with clients and pitching and pricing projects. UH Productions allows students to work with industry standard equipment while ensuring creativity and personalization. Videos by UH Productions can be viewed at www.manoanow.org/uhpro/.

KTUH - UH's only 24/7 student managed radio station with live DJs around the clock all year long. Since 1969, KTUH has aired commercial free and is the oldest non-commercial educational radio station on the island. KTUH is heard on the radio at 90.1 FM and online at ktuh.org. KTUH celebrates having long-running shows such as Monday Night Live, which is dedicated to bringing live music by up-and-coming musicians to listeners; Kipuka Leo, which is the only all Hawaiian language program on air; and the KTUH Alumni Show. KTUH is heard island wide since its antenna co-location with Hawaii Public Radio in 2015.
